INTEREST GROWING IN ADVOCATE'S GREAT POPULARITY CONTEST

Five Girls to Be Given, Free of All Charges, a Delightful Ten Days Trip to Atlantic City, Philadelphia and Washington.

CONTEST PROPER TO START JUNE FIRST

Interest in THE ADVOCATE'S great Atlantic City Contest is growing daily and, although, the contest proper does not start until June 1st, we are receiving many inquiries each day. There has been a large number of girls nominated, some of whom are sure to be winners. Remember, we will give 3,000 votes free for every candidate nominated before June 1st.

Girls, just think of what we offer to give you: A FREE 10 days trip to Atlantic City, "the beauty spot of the whole world," it has been written and talked about so much that it is a household word in not only every home in America, but Europe as well. It is the mecca of the world for the richest class during the summer months, particularly during the months of July and August, and it is not surprising to see along the great board walk or taking the cooling dip in the surf, the kings and queens of Europe, the Rockefeller's and Morgan's of America—all there with but one thought in mind—to have the time of their lives—and they have it too.

The great board walk about which so much has been written, is a great steel esplanade, elevated and reaching for seven miles along the ocean front. It is crowded from morning 'till night with throngs of people from this country and Europe. Three thousand rolling chairs glide over the "board walk" continuously, in which ride the millions of the world. The bathing beach is easily the finest in the world. It is said that at the height of the season there are as many as 80,000 people in bathing at the same time. Just think of it! 80,000. What a wonderful sight to behold.

Extending far out into the ocean from the beach are six massive piers over a mile in length, these piers are literally covered with every kind of amusement that one could conceive; each one is a veritable World's Fair within itself. One could spend hours on each and every one of these piers and immensely enjoy every one.

In short, Atlantic City leads the entire world as the grandest amusement resort on the globe today. And it is to this truly wonderful place that the five popular young ladies from Mt. Sterling and surrounding counties will go as the honored guests of the ADVOCATE. Then after our party has enjoyed this magnificent outing, they will be taken first to Baltimore, then to staid old Philadelphia and then to the most interesting city in the universe—Washington D. C.

Now can you picture in the widest flights of your imagination a more enjoyable, a more delightful outing than this one? Expense has been entirely forgotten in planning the itinerary and the sole thought in the mind of the management was to make it the grandest outing that was ever offered a bunch of girls anywhere.

Any energetic girl can win one of these delightful trips, and all it takes is a little personal effort and your friends will do the rest.

THE DISTRICTS.

During the time of the contest, the territory covered by the ADVOCATE has been divided into five districts, thus making the winning of the race much easier for the candidates.

Understand one young lady will be sent from each district. Of course, the one receiving the highest number of votes in her district. The following are the districts and their boundaries:

DISTRICT NO. 1.

Begins at the C. & O. depot in the center of Bank street, thence north up center of said street to Howard avenue; thence up center of Howard avenue to corner of Howard avenue and Clay streets; thence east to center of Maysville street; thence north to the city limits, including all the territory lying east of said line in the city limits.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

Shall comprise all the balance of the city lying west of the line as indicated in District No. 1.

DISTRICT NO. 3.

Is composed of the following voting precincts: Aaron's Run, Side View, Grassy Lick, Levee and Beans.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

Canargo, Jeffersonville, Howards Mill, Harts and Sautville.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

The counties of Bath, Clark, Menefee and Rowan.

Although divided into districts, contestants may solicit votes anywhere.

RULES OF THE ELECTION.

Any young lady of good character, sixteen years of age or over, residing in any of the five districts is eligible to enter the contest.

To nominate a girl, merely place her name on a slip of paper, or better still, fill out the coupon in this issue and drop it into the ballot box in this office.

The young lady must reside in the district in which she is entered, although she may receive votes from any source whatsoever.

Remember, all those entering the race before June 1st will receive a bonus of 3,000 votes.

TO OUR PATRONS.

If there is anything at all about the entire contest that you do not fully understand, either call or address the Contest Manager at Advocate office.

The contest will be conducted in a fair, straightforward, open manner, and the management will take pleasure in explaining any detail that is not quite clear to any one. Address all inquiries, etc., to

THE CONTEST MANAGER,
Care THE ADVOCATE.

No one connected with the ADVOCATE office in any capacity will be permitted to participate or take any part whatever in the big contest.

BRICK STREETS

Mass Meeting of Business Men of Mt. Sterling, Ky., Held at Court House Monday Night.

At a mass meeting of the business men and property owners of Mt. Sterling, Ky., held in the County Court Room, on April 24, for the purpose of lending assistance to the Brick Street Commission in their recommendation to the City Council on the bid submitted for paving certain streets of the city.

This meeting was called to order by Dr. W. R. Thompson.

Upon motion duly made, seconded and unanimously adopted, Mr. H. R. Prewitt, was elected Temporary Chairman of the meeting, and W. C. Hamilton, Secretary.

The Chair, declared the meeting open for consideration of the bid for paving the streets.

Dr. W. R. Thompson and Mr. C. C. Chenault, of the Committee on Street paving, presented the bid, together with their view, saying, that they had labored under the impression that the work could be done for $2, per square yard, but that the streets should be paved.

Mr. Chenault, further saying, that the price proposed in the bid of $2.18, was not such an increase as would make him hesitate to pave in front of his property. It was further suggested by Mr. Chenault, that certain persons owning property claimed the right of superintending the work, and that he as an individual would suggest that the Committee be discharged and a new Committee appointed from these property owners.

This idea met the favor of Mr. C. K. Oldham, who moved the discharge of the Committee, seconded by W. R. Thompson, and on submission to the house prevailed.

Motion was then made that a new Committee be appointed to consist of Messrs. C. C. Chenault, Jno. W. Wade, I. F. Tabb, W. S. Lloyd, and A. B. Oldham. This motion receiving a prompt second, on submission was unanimously adopted.

It was then proposed that the sense of the property owners be taken as to paving in front of their property and the streets covered by the bid. It was the unanimous sense of the property owners present that the streets be paved.

The sense of the meeting as a whole was then inquired as to paving the streets covered by the bid. It was the unanimous expression that the streets be paved.

The newly appointed Committee was instructed to make recommendation to the City Council consistent with the general expression of the property owners and citizens present.

The meeting then adjourned.

H. R. PREWITT, Ch'm.

Attest: W. C. HAMILTON, Sec.

The meeting was an enthusiastic one for brick streets. The difference in price for paving the streets of this city as compared with other towns and cities, is accounted for by the extra cost in freight rate and getting materials necessary to the work delivered. Expressions have been sought from both local and foreign contractors as to the reasonableness of the bid submitted. Claim was made that it could not be reasonably expected better, that the bid should be accepted.

Nothing would add more to the city, in the way of enhancing the value of property, beautifying and making more sanitary than paving the streets, as well as it being an economical undertaking.

$15 suits now $11.24 at Guthrie's.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Ephriam Woods, of Stanford, Ky., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Sallie Taylor to Grover C. Anderson, of this city. Miss Woods, who has been a frequent visitor here as the guest of Mrs. C. W. Kirkpatrick and Miss Arabella Bogie, is a lovely girl, and by her charming personality and winning manner has already made a host of friends in this her home to be. Mr. Anderson who is a son of Mr. Geo. W. Anderson, is one of our most popular and progressive young business men, and is a young man of sterling worth.

The wedding will take place in the Baptist Church at Stanford, June 8th.

It will pay you to attend Guthrie's cut price sale.

Fresh strawberries received daily at Vandersell's.

Begins Saturday.

The Lexington Spring Racing meeting will begin Saturday and from the great number of horses present the meeting promises to be the best one held there for many years. Nice purses will be given and as many of the crack racers of America are there some royal sport will be enjoyed.

Forrest Denmark 153

I wish to announce that Forrest Denmark will serve a limited number of mares at and mention a few facts why it will be to your advantage to patronize him.

First—He has sired more high priced combined horses than any stallion in Kentucky. He has fifty-two colts to his credit that have actually sold for an average of $850 per head. The highest priced saddle gelding that ever left this State was by him.

Second—He has sired more show horses than any stallion in Montgomery county. Comus, Eckersall, Chancefor and The Cardinal (four geldings sired by him) have won more blue ribbons than any four geldings you can mention by all the horses you know. He sired Glasco, the only stallion that defeated the wonderful Montgomery Chief, and many others that have won fame in the show ring. His get have been awarded at leading fairs and horse shows throughout the United States, first premium in Sweepstakes, Saddle Classes, combined rings, light harness, heavy horses, high steppers, coach horse, best pair horses (both being by Forrest) and best type to produce a carriage horse. One of his get was awarded a medal abroad for being the best type to improve the breed of horses there.

Third—Forrest Denmark is considered by many good horsemen the handsomest horse they had ever seen. He is a bay with black points, sixteen hands high and weighed 1200 pounds in his prime. Has the best of bone, feet and general conformation, and carries a very high tail naturally. "Like begets like."

Fourth—His colts rank very high in the saddle horse world. They have the best of saddle horse action, style, conformation and disposition. They will be sought after as long as there is a demand for high class horses. Brood mares by him have already proven themselves leading matrons.

Fifth—Your patronage will be appreciated and we will do the most in our power to help furnish you a good market for colts by our horses.

longingly. "But I will wait," he said.

"You may wait, if you don't mind," said Mr. Howard. "I'll be able to let you know in a few minutes, I hope."

Mr. Grimm bowed and passed out. At the end of twenty-five minutes the door of Mr. Howard's private office opened and he appeared. His face was violently red, evidently from anger, and perspiration stood on his forehead.

"I can't do anything with him," he declared savagely. "He says simply that negotiations must be conducted through me or not at all."

Mr. Grimm had risen; he bowed courteously.

"Very well," he said placidly. "You understand, of course, as the note says, that this refusal of his terminates the negotiations, so—"

"But just a moment—" interposed Mr. Howard quickly.

"Good day," said Mr. Grimm.

The door opened and closed; he was gone. Three minutes later he stepped into a telephone booth at a nearby corner and took down the receiver.

"Hello, central!" he called, and then: "This is Mr. Grimm of the Secret Service. What number was Mr. Howard talking to?"

"Eleven double-nought six, Alexandria," was the reply.

"Where is the connection? In whose name?"

"The connection is five miles out from Alexandria in a farm-house on the old Baltimore Road," came the crisp, business-like answer. "The name Murdock Williams."

"Thank you," said Mr. Grimm. "Good-by."

A moment later he was standing by the curb waiting for a car, when Howard, still angry, and with an expression of deep chagrin on his face, came bustling up.

"If you can give me until to-morrow afternoon, then—" he began.

Mr. Grimm glanced around at him, and with a slight motion of his head summoned two men who had been chatting nearby. One of them was Blair, and the other Hastings.

"Take this man in charge," he directed. "Hold him in solitary confinement until you hear from me. Don't talk to him, don't let any one else talk to him, and don't let him before he is locked up, take that person in charge also. He is guilty of no crime, but a single word from him now will endanger my life."

That was all. It was said and done so quickly that Howard, dazed, confused and utterly unable to account for anything, was led away without a protest. Mr. Grimm, musing gently on the stupidity of mankind in general and the ease with which it is possible to lead even a clever individual into a trap, if the bait appeals to greed, took a car and went up town.

Some three hours later he walked briskly along a narrow path strewn with pine needles, which led tortuously up to an old colonial farm-house. Outwardly the place seemed to be deserted. The blinds, battered and stripped of paint by wind and rain, were all closed and one corner of the small veranda had crumbled away from age and neglect. In the rear of the house, rising from an old barn, a thin pole with a cup-like attachment at the apex, thrust its point into the open above the dense, odoriferous plumes. Mr. Grimm noted these things as he came along.

He stepped up quietly on the veranda and had just extended one hand to rap on the door when it was opened from within, and Miss Thorne stood before him. He was not surprised; intuition had told him he would meet her again, perhaps here in hiding. A sudden quick tenderness lighted the listless eyes. For an instant she stood staring, her face pallid against the gloom of the hallway beyond, and she drew a long breath of relief, as she pressed one hand to her breast. The blue-gray eyes were veiled by drooping lids, then she recovered herself and they opened into his. In them he saw anxiety, apprehension, fear even.

"Miss Thorne!" he greeted, and he bowed low over the white hand which she impulsively thrust toward him.

"I—I knew some one was coming," she stammered in a half whisper. "I didn't know it was you; I hadn't known definitely until this instant that you were safe from the explosion. I am glad—glad, you understand; glad that you were not—" She stopped and fought back her emotions, then went on: "But you must not come in; you must go away at once. Your—your life is in danger here."

"How did you know I was coming?" inquired Mr. Grimm.

"From the moment Mr. Howard telephoned," she replied, still hastily, still in the mysterious half whisper. "I knew that it could only be some one from your bureau, and I hoped that it was you. I saw how you forced him to call us up here, and that was all you needed. It was simply a matter of course, to trace the telephone call. Both of her hands were one of his desperately. "Now, go, please. The Latin compact is at an end; you merely invite death here. Now, go!"

Her eyes were searching the listless face with entreaty in them; the slender fingers were fiercely gripping one of Mr. Grimm's nerveless hands. For an instant some strange, softening light flickered in the young man's eyes, then it passed.

"I have no choice, Miss Thorne," he said gravely at last. "I am honor bound by my government to do one of two things. If I fail in the first of those—the greater—it can only be because—"

He stopped; hope flamed up in her eyes and she leaned forward eagerly studying the impassive face.

"Because—" she repeated.

"It can only be because I am killed," he added quietly. Suddenly his whole manner changed. "I should like to see the—inventor?"

"But don't you see—don't you see you will be killed if—" she began tensely.

"May I see the inventor, please?" Mr. Grimm interrupted.

For a little time she stood, white and rigid, staring at him. Then her lids fluttered down wearily, as if to veil some crushing agony within her, and she stepped aside. Mr. Grimm entered and the door closed noiselessly behind him. After a moment her hand rested lightly on his arm, and he was led into a room to his left. This door, too, she closed, immediately turning to face him.

"We may talk here a few minutes without interruption," she said in a low tone. Her voice was quite calm now. "If you will be—"

"Please understand, Miss Thorne," he interposed mercifully, "that I must see the inventor, whoever he is. What assurance have I that this is not some ruse to permit him to escape?"

"You have my word of honor," she said quite simply.

"Please go on," he said down.

"You will see him too soon, I fear," she continued slowly. "If you had not come to him he would have gone to you." She swayed a little and pressed one hand to her eyes. "I would to God it were in my power to prevent that meeting!" she exclaimed desperately. Then, with an effort: "There are some things I want to explain to you. It may be that you will be willing to go to your own free will. If I lay bare to you every step I have taken since I have been in Washington; if I make clear to you every obscure point in this hideous intrigue; if I confess to you that the Latin compact has been given up for all time, won't that be enough? Won't you go then?"

Mr. Grimm's teeth closed with a snap.

"I won't want that—from you," he declared.

"But if I should tell it all to you?" she pleaded.

"I won't listen, Miss Thorne. You once paid me the compliment of saying that I was one man you knew in whom you had never been disappointed." The listless eyes were blazing into her own now. "I have never been disappointed in you. I will not permit you to disappoint me now. The secrets of your government are mine if I can get them—but I won't allow you to tell them to me."

"My government," Miss Thorne repeated, and her lips curled sadly. "I—I have no government. I have been cast off by that government, stripped of my rank, and branded as a traitor!"

"Traitor!" Mr. Grimm's lips formed the word silently.

"I failed, don't you see?" she rushed on. "Ignorance is the reward of failure. Prince d'Abruzzi went on to New York that night, enabled a full account of the destruction of the compact to my government, and sailed home on the following day. I was the responsible one, and now it all comes back on me." For a moment she was silent. "It's so singular, Mr. Grimm. The fight from the first was between us—two; and you won."

CHAPTER XXVI.

In Which They Both Win.

Mr. Grimm dropped into a chair with his teeth clenched, and his face like chalk. For a moment or more he sat there turning it all over in his mind. Truly the triumph had been robbed of its splendor when the blow fell here—here upon a woman he loved.

"There's no shame in the confession of one who is fairly beaten," Isabel went on softly, after a little. "There are many things that you don't understand. I came to Washington with an authority from my sovereign higher even than that vested in the ambassador; I came as I did and compelled Count di Rosini to obtain an invitation to the state ball for me in order that I might meet a representative of Russia there that night and receive an answer as to whether or not they would join in the compact. I received that answer; its substance is of no consequence. "And you remember where I first met you? It was while you were investigating the shooting of Senor Alvarez in the German embassy. That shooting, as you know, was done by Prince d'Abruzzi, so almost from the beginning my plans went wrong because of the assumption of authority by the prince. The paper he took from Senor Alvarez after the shooting was supposed to bear vitally upon Mexico's attitude toward our plan, but, as it developed, it was about another matter entirely."

"Yes, I know," said Mr. Grimm.

"The event of that night which you did not learn was that Germany agreed to join the compact upon conditions. Mr. Rankin, who was attached to the German embassy in an advisory capacity, delivered the answer to me, and I pretended to faint in order that I might reasonably avoid you."

"I surmised that much," remarked Mr. Grimm.

"The telegraphing I did with my fan was as much to distract your attention as anything else, and at the same time to identify myself to Mr. Rankin, whom I had never met. You knew him, of course; I didn't."

She was silent a while as her eyes steadily met those of Mr. Grimm. Finally she went on:

"When next I met you it was in the Venezuelan legation; you were investigating the theft of the fifty thousand dollars in gold from the safe. I thrust myself into that case, because I was afraid of you; and mercifully destroyed a woman's name in your eyes to further my plans. Made you believe that Senorita Rodriguez stole that fifty thousand dollars, and I returned it to you, presumably, while we stood in her room that night. Only it was not her room—it was mine! I stole the fifty thousand dollars! All the details, even to her trip to see Mr. Griswold in Baltimore in company with Mr. Cadwallader, had been carefully worked out; and she did bring me the combination of the safe from Mr. Griswold on the strength of a forged letter. But she didn't know it. There was no theft, of course. I had no intention of keeping the money. It was necessary to take it to distract attention from the thing I did do—break a lock inside the safe to get a sealed packet that contained Venezuela's answer to our plan. I sealed that packet again, and there was never a suspicion that it had been opened."

"Only a suspicion," Mr. Grimm corrected.

"Then came the abduction of Monsieur Boisseguet, the French ambassador. I plunged into that case as I did in the other because I was afraid of you and had to know just how much you knew. It was explained to you as an attempt at extortion with details which I carefully supplied. As a matter of fact, Monsieur Boisseguet owned our plans even endangered them; and it was not advisable to have him recalled or even permit him to resign at the moment. So we abducted him, intending to hold him until direct orders could reach him from Paris. Understand, please, that all these things were made possible by the aid and co-operation of dozens, scores, of agents who were under my orders; every person who appeared in that abduction was working at my direction. The ambassador's unexpected escape disarranged our plans; but he was taken out of the embassy by force the second time under your very eyes. The darkness which made his possible was due to the fact that while you were looking for the switch, and I was apparently aiding, was holding my hand over it all the time to keep you from turning on the light. You remember that?"

Mr. Grimm nodded.

"All the rest of it you know," she concluded wearily. "You compelled me to leave the Venezuelan legation by your espionage, but in the crowded hotel to which I moved I had little difficulty avoiding your Mr. Hastings your Mr. Blair and your Mr. Johnson so I came and went freely without your knowledge. The escape of the prince from prison you arranged, so you understand all of that, as well as the meeting and attempted signing of the compact, and the rapid recovery of Senor Alvarez. And, after all, it was my fault that our plans failed, because if I had not been—been unwise as to your condition and had not made the mistake of going to the deserted little house where you were a prisoner, the plans would have succeeded, the compact been signed."

"We would have succeeded in spite of you," explained Isabel. "We were afraid of you, Mr. Grimm. It was a compliment to you that we considered it necessary to account for your whereabouts at the time of the signing of the compact."

"And if you had succeeded," remarked Mr. Grimm, "the whole civilized world would have come to war."

"I never permitted myself to think of it that way," she replied frankly. "There is something splendid to me in a battle of brains; there is exaltation, stimulation, excitement in it. It has always possessed the greatest fascination for me. I have always won, you know, until now. I failed! And my reward is 'Traitor!'"

"Just a word of assurance now," she went on after a moment. "The Latin compact has been definitely given up; the plan has been dismissed, thanks to you; the peace of the world is unbroken. And who am I? I know you have wondered; I know your agents have scoured the world to find out. I am the daughter of a former Italian ambassador to the Court of St. James. My mother was an English woman. I was born and received my early education in England, hence my perfect knowledge of that tongue. In Rome I am, or have been, alas, the Countess Rosa d'Orsetti; now I am an exile with a price on my head. That is all, except for several years I was a trusted agent of my government, and a friend of my queen."

She rose and extended both hands gracefully. Mr. Grimm seized the slender white fingers and stood with eyes fixed upon her. Slowly a flush crept into her pallid cheeks, and she bowed her head.

"Wonderful woman!" he said softly. "I shall ask a favor of you now," she went on gently. "Let all this that you have learned take the place of whatever you expected to learn, and go. Believe me, there can only be one result if you meet—if you meet the inventor of the wireless cap upon which so much was staked, and so much lost." She shuddered a little, then raised the blue-gray eyes beseechingly to his face. "Please go."

Go! The word straightened Mr. Grimm in his tracks and he allowed her hands to fall limply. Suddenly his face grew hard. In the ecstasy of adoration he had momentarily forgotten his purpose here. His eyes lost their ardor; his nerveless hands dropped beside him.

"No," he said.

"You must—you must," she urged gently. "I know what it means to you. You feel it your duty to unravel the secret of the percussion cap? You can't; no man can. No one knows the inventor more intimately than I, and even I couldn't get it from him. There are no plans for it in existence, and even if there were he would no more sell them than you would have accepted a fortune at the hands of Prince d'Abruzzi to remain silent. The compact has failed; you did that. The agents have scattered—gone to other duties. That is enough."

"No," said Mr. Grimm. There was a strange fear tearing at his heart. "No one knows the inventor more intimately than I." "No," he said again. "I won from my government a promise to be made good upon a condition—I must fulfill that condition."

"Won't you go if you know you will be killed," and suddenly her face turned scarlet, "and that your life is dear to me?"

"No."

Isabel dropped upon her knees before him.

"This inventor—this man whom you insist on seeing—is half insane with disappointment and anger," she rushed on desperately. "Remember that a vast fortune, honor, fame were at his finger tips when you placed them beyond his reach by the destruction of the compact. He has sworn to kill you."

"I can't go!"

"If I tell you that of the two human beings in this world whom I love this man is one?"

"No."

A shuffling step sounded in the hallway just outside. Mr. Grimm stepped back from the kneeling figure, and turned to face the door with his revolver ready.

"Great God!" It was a scream of agony. "He is my brother! Don't you see?"

She came to her feet and went staggering across to the door. The key clicked in the lock.

"Your brother?"

"He wouldn't listen to me—you wouldn't listen to me, and now—and now! God have mercy!"

There was a sharp rattling, a clatter at the door, and Isabel turned to Mr. Grimm mutely, with arms outstretched. The revolver barrel clicked under his hand, then, after a moment, he replaced the weapon in his pocket.

"Please open the door," he requested quietly.

"He'll kill you!" she screamed.

Exhausted, helpless, she leaned against a chair with her face in her hands. Mr. Grimm went to her suddenly, tore the hands from her face, and met the tear-stained eyes.

"I love you," he said. "I want you to know that!"

"And I love you—that's why it matters so."

Leaving her there, Mr. Grimm strode straight to the door and threw it open. He saw only the outline of a thin little man of indeterminate age, then came a blinding flash under his eyes, and he leaped forward. There was a short, sharp struggle, and both went down. The revolver! He must get that! He reached for it with the one idea of disarming this madman. The muzzle was thrust toward him, he threw up his arm to protect his head, and then came a second flash. Instantly he felt the figure in his arms grow limp; and after a moment he rose. The face of the man on the floor was pearly gray; and a thin, scarlet thread flowed from his temple.

He turned toward Isabel. She lay near the chair, a little crumpled heap. In a stride he was beside her, and lifted her head to his knee. The blue-gray eyes opened into his once, then they closed. She had fainted. The first bullet had pierced her arm; it was only a flesh wound. He lifted her gently and placed her on a couch, after which he disappeared into another room. In a little while there came the cheerful tinkle of a telephone bell.

"Is this the county constable's office?" he inquired. "Well, there's been a little shooting accident at the Murdock Williams' place, five miles out from Alexandria on the old Baltimore Road. Please send some of your men over to take charge. Two hours from now call up Mr. Grimm at Secret Service headquarters in Washington and he will explain. Good-by." And a few minutes later Mr. Grimm walked along the road toward an automobile a hundred yards away, bearing Miss Thorne in his arms. The chauffeur cranked the machine and climbed to his seat.

"Washington!" directed Mr. Grimm.

"Never mind the speed laws."

Thou faithful servant of thy master, man!
Compact of brawn and sinew, strong of limb
Art thou, O toiler, and thy whole life's span
Is but one round of servitude for him
Who doth too oft, alas, hold thee as naught
But beast of burden; how thy steaming flanks
And straining tendons speak of thy hard lot,
"The poorest service is repaid with thanks,"
Our Shakespeare said, and thou, O patient beast,
Requited by mere shelter and thy food,
Dost well deserve thy master's thanks, at least,
Aye, more, his love as well as gratitude;
No chattel thou, merely to serve man's need,
But helpful friend; O sturdy, trusty steed.

No fiery Bucephalus art thou;
Thy rugged form, thy slow and plodding gait
Adapt thee to the humble dray and plow,
But in the case thou bearest mighty freight
There is a power akin to majesty;
Thy quivering nostrils and thy glowing eyes
Denote thy quick response to sympathy,
The word of loving praise that thou dost prize
Ofttimes more than thy provender perchance.
Ah, patient beast, as daily thou dost go
Upon the wearying rounds that circumstance
Hath set for thee, no creature here below
Should in man's true esteem hold higher place
Than thou, O noblest server of our race!

OVER $800,000 FOR BALLPLAYERS

Big Salaries For Men Who Are the Best in Their Line--Matthewson Heads the List.

Nearly 400 ballplayers began drawing salaries from the sixteen major league clubs on April 12, when the 1911 season opened throughout the country. Baseball sharps figure that before the pennant races end the magnates will have paid out more than $800,000 for services rendered. It is conceded that the players in the National and the American Leagues this year will receive more money for their labors than ever before in the history of the game. There is no salary limit in this vogue, and the stipends range all the way from $1,500 to nearly ten times that amount.

In the New York Nationals, John McGraw, manager, who is not a player, will receive about $12,000 for his work this year. Christy Matthewson is believed to be the highest paid ballplayer in the profession. He signed a five year contract last winter at an annual salary of $10,000, it is said. The two dozen other players on the New York team will average about $2,750 a piece, swelling the total salary list to more than $85,000, high water mark and the record in professional baseball.

The New York Americans will also receive liberal salaries. Manager Chase will draw about $7,000 for his services as manager, captain and first baseman with chance to receive a substantial bonus if the hill men win the championship. Russell Ford, the team's star pitcher, will get close to $5,000 and the season's payroll will foot up in the neighborhood of $65,000.

Among the other big league teams, the pitchers will, as usual, be the star performers on the salary list. According to current reports, the wages of some of the more important men will run about as follows: Combs and Bender, Philadelphia, $5,000 each; Walsh, Chicago, $6,000; Mullen, Detroit, $5,000; Adams, Pittsburgh, $5,000; Brown, Chicago, $5,000; Collins, Philadelphia, $7,000; Lajoie, Cleveland, $7,000; Wagner, Pittsburgh, $6,000; Cobb, Detroit, $8,000.

Practically all the big league clubs except Boston will exceed the $5,000 mark in their salary lists.

Aside from the players' salaries the expenses of each club will include about $8,000 for railroad fares, $6,000 for hotel accommodations; $6,000 for clerical work; $10,000 for rent; and $5,000 for uniforms, equipment and incidentals, or about $35,000 gross. The

New York Nationals will top the list of spenders, owing to the fact that the rent of their grounds is $40,000 a year, which makes the total expense of the club for the year about $180,000, including the $30,000 spent on the Southern training trip and for new players.

FRECKLES GONE

"Simple Remedy From Wm. S. Lloyd Removed Them," Says Society Lady.

"The best skin specialists told me that nothing would remove my freckles and that I would carry them to my grave," said a well known society woman, "but I fooled them all with a new drug, othine--double strength, that I bought at Wm. S. Lloyd's which cleared my skin and gave me a fine complexion."

The action of othine is really remarkable, for when applied at night, many of the freckles disappear entirely by morning, and the rest have begun to fade. An ounce is usually all that is needed, even for the worst case.

Be sure to ask Wm. S. Lloyd for the double strength othine, as this is sold under a guarantee of money back if it fails to remove the freckles.

The Poultry Industry.

The fact that a representative of the Haggin family has gone into the chicken-raising business on a Bluegrass farm is but one of many indications of the growing importance of the poultry industry in Kentucky.

In former years the man of the house on the average farm seldom troubled his mind about poultry except on such occasions as "the old woman's chickens" invaded the wheat field or showed a disposition to render unnecessary assistance during the process of corn planting. On such occasions the honest farmer probably cast a few clouds at the invaders or set the dog on them and then promptly forgot that there was a chicken on earth until he chanced to encounter one for his Sunday dinner. He was thoroughly content to leave the poultry business to the "women folks."

The "women folks" are still raising chickens in Kentucky, but a large number of men who formerly did not think the poultry business worth while have seen a great light. Thousands of farmers in Missouri never woke up to the possibilities of poultry raising until the great World's Fair was held in St. Louis. Then a lot of them went back home and began to help the "women folks" train up Light Brahmas and Buff Cochins and Black Minorcas in the way they should go. It was a good business and the average Missourian doesn't have to be "shown" when it comes down to a question of poultry profits. Missouri's egg crop alone now is worth twenty-odd million dollars annually. The production is getting bigger every year, and it is Missouri's proud boast that in poultry she is pre-eminent.

Here in Kentucky we still think so little of the poultry industry that we do not gather any statistics about it. Nevertheless it is a great and growing business and the product of the poultry farms in the aggregate is enormous. After a while the Federal Census Bureau will tell us how many chickens we had per capita in 1910 and the number of eggs that were on hand when the enumerators called. It will also tell us what we are doing in the turkey line and with respect to ducks, geese and all that sort of thing. The compilation will be highly enlightening and no doubt there are many who will be surprised at its magnitude. In fact there are a lot of us who haven't reached the waking-up stage and need to be "shown" as were the Missouri farmers.

BRICK STREET MASS MEETING.

At a well attended Mass Meeting of citizens held at the Court House Monday night, at the suggestion of Dr. W. R. Thompson, a member of the Street Paving Commission, all members of the Commission who were not property owners in the district to be paved resigned and the following Commission, consisting entirely of property owners in such district was then recommended to the Council, to have charge of the paving of such district, viz: I. F. Tabb, A. B. Oldham, W. S. Lloyd, John W. Wade and C. C. Chenault. One needs only to read these names to know the work will be done right.

A vote was taken, in which only property owners within the district proposed to be paved participated, and the new Commission was unanimously directed to let a contract with the J. H. Shoup Company, of Dayton, Ohio, upon the best terms obtainable. A vote was then taken upon the same question before the entire audience, and without a dissenting voice the vote was in the affirmative. The new Commission met immediately after the Mass Meeting and we are informed took the necessary steps for the letting of a contract and the early beginning of the actual work of construction.

The Mass Meeting was well attended, everybody was enthusiastically for brick streets and indications are that Mt. Sterling in a few short months will assume quite a metropolitan air.

We are glad to learn the City Council has taken action on the ash barrel nuisance, dozens of which can be seen on any thoroughfare of our City. It is just as easy to keep a metal receptacle inside the building, which can be emptied daily and it is much more sanitary. These eye sores should have been done away with long ago. After our merchants have tried the new plan suggested, they would not go back to the old filthy wooden barrels, if given their choice in the matter.

The Hon. William Addams, of Cynthiana, is certainly making a determined fight for the Democratic nomination for Governor and appears to be gaining ground daily.

With four candidates in the field, the race for Lieutenant Governor promises to be a lively one.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Hutton-Bailey Stock Company opened a week's engagement here Monday night to a large audience, in fact every seat in the house was taken. The company is well balanced and has several artists among its members who are much above the average.

This company carries a car load of special scenery. The first show given was The Maid and The Man, Monday night. Tuesday night, Lena Rivers; Wednesday night, Tempest and Sunshine; Thursday, The Signal of Liberty; Friday, Thelma; Saturday matinee, East Lynn, and Saturday night, Jesse James.

The style features of our spring styles are conservative, practical and novel enough to command your admiration.

The Dignity of a Dollar

Take it out of your pocket and look at it. That dollar has dignity, it ought to be respected. It represents so much of your labor in brain and energy that has come back to you. If you want to take chances with it go to the race track, or to the stock market—they offer great odds. But this talk is for people who want their dollar to bring a dollar's worth of satisfaction of quality—for people who take no chances. PERSONALLY CONDUCT the workings of your dollar. EARLY COUNTY HISTORY

WEATHER AND CROPS.

The winter of 1779-80 was known as the "hard winter," in Kentucky. The game froze in the forest, and the cattle around the stations. Corn at $50 to $175 per bushel in Continental money.

In April, 1785, the Mississippi River reached the height of 30 feet above the highest water mark previously known. That year was remembered for many years, as the year of the great waters.

September 10, 1803, there was an extraordinary shower of reddish hue, which many believed to be blood, that fell in the vicinity of Turtle Creek meeting house.

January 10, 1811, there was a great earthquake in Kentucky, most severe in the western part of the State. In April, 1815, there was a great flood in the Ohio River.

December 12, 1817, a shock of an earthquake, was felt throughout the State.

The winter of 1824-5 was remarkably mild, and the weather from December to March was mostly warm and sunshine.

It is recorded that on December 14, 1826, the Ohio River was lower than it was ever before known to be at that season of the year.

January 4, 1827, the thermometer stood 4 degrees below zero and the Ohio River was frozen over making a perfect bridge. The ice did not break up until January 30th.

July 5, 1827, there were two shocks of earthquake felt.

Beginning on the 1st day of December, 1827, rain fell ever day for over three months. Between December 1st and January 10th there were only four days on which the sun made its appearance.

On March 9th, 1828, three shocks of an earthquake were felt at Maysville. April 4, 1828, snow fell over two inches deep in Northern Kentucky, and on the 6th day of April, there was another fall of snow one and a half inches deep.

February 1, 1830, the thermometer stood at 46 degrees above zero, and by sunrise the next morning it was only three and a half above zero. May 10, 1830, there was a severe hail storm through parts of Mason, Bourbon and other counties. Some of the hail stones were two to three inches in circumference. July 22, 1830 there was a tremendous rain storm in Northern Kentucky, which did great damage to towns, farms, mills, tanneries and roads.

February 9, 1832 there was the greatest flood ever known to that time in the Ohio River.

November 12, 1833, from eleven o'clock at night to daylight the next morning there were showers of shooting stars. Many fell directly to the earth, others obliquely or aslant. Still others shot in a parallel direction until their explosion without noise. Some made streaks of light like needles. Many persons described the scene as a storm of fire, others as snow-flakes, or trains of fire.

April 26, 1834, there was a heavy frost in Northern Kentucky which destroyed every species of fruit on the high lands and injured the young corn, clover and all sorts of vegetation.

April 4, 1837, there was snow at St. Louis seventeen inches deep, and two inches deep throughout Kentucky.

May 18, 1837, the Ohio River at Maysville rose twenty-four feet in twenty-four hours. July 11, 1837, there was a grand meteoric explosion seen and heard at Georgetown and between Lexington and Paris. It was described as a "great white ball, whiter than snow, very bright, nearly as big as the sun, flying almost as swiftly as lightning from where the sun was shining brightly towards the East. The noise was terrible, like a heavy cannon at a great distance."

February 22, 1838, the thermometer showed fifteen degrees below zero. June 5, 1838, there was a remarkable hail storm in Fayette county. In some places the deposit was two feet deep. All crops were ruined in a space of three miles wide. In December, 1838, the Ohio River was frozen over for two weeks.

December 4th and 5th, 1840, snow fell to the depth of fifteen inches.

June 13, 1841, the first rain fell in Northern Kentucky for six weeks, breaking a severe drouth. The thermometer had stood at ninety-six to one hundred and three degrees in the shade. June 25, 1841, a hail storm in central Kentucky, covered a space from two to five miles wide, destroying hemp and greatly damaging other crops.

In 1842, Isaac Cunningham, of Clark county raised a large field of corn which averaged 28 barrels to the acre. George W. Williams, in Bourbon county, raised 31 2-3 barrels to the acre, and Walter C. Young, of Jessamine county got 78 2-3 barrels from two acres, or 39 1-3 barrels to the acre.

November 30, 1845, snow fell to the depth of nine inches.

December 9th and 10th, 1847, there was a remarkable heavy rain. On Lallegrud and Boone's Creeks every mill was swept away.

May 1, 1851, there was a heavy black frost, which destroyed whole orchards of fruit, grapes and many tender trees.

"Suffered day and night the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Ointment. It cured me permanently." — Hon. J. R. Garrett, Mayor, Girard, Ala. 1-m.

How to Find Easter.

Even the youngest know by this time that Easter does not come on the same day of the month year after year like Christmas. Here is rule for finding when it will come:

"Thirty days hath September,"
Every person can remember,
But to know when Easter's come,
Puzzles even scholars, some.

When March the twenty-first is past,
Just watch the silvery moon;
And when you see it full and round,
Know Easter'll be here soon.

After the moon has reached its full,
Then Easter will be here
The very Sunday after,
In each and every year.

And if it hap on Sunday
The moon should reach its height,
The Sunday following this event
Will be the Easter bright.

NO REASON FOR IT.

When Mt. Sterling Citizens Show
the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of the urinary disorders, the dangers of kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Mt. Sterling citizen says:

Mrs. J. P. Nelson, 34 Richmond avenue, Mt. Sterling, Ky., says: "I can give Doan's Kidney Pills my highest endorsement. They have proven of great benefit to me and I believe that if I had not used them, I would be in poor health today. My back drove me almost frantic, as it ached almost constantly and I always felt tired and worn out. The least thing worried me and I also suffered from nervous headaches. Since using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at F. C. Duerson's Drug Store, I feel like a different woman. I take them whenever I have the least recurrence of kidney trouble and they never fail to give me prompt relief."

"Skyscrapers."

Great structures can now be built with safety and even with greater solidity than the old style stone building of three and four stories in height. It is cheap steel that has made this possible. Large buildings for thousands of years have been constructed with enormous walls of masonry to hold up the inner framework of floors and partitions, but the present generation discovered a method by which the framework can be made strong enough with steel to hold up the outside walls of masonry. The process is simply reversed, and the tall building is therefore said to be not architecture, but engineering with a stone veneer. The skyscraper has been called a steel bridge standing on end with passenger cars running up and down within it. The Park Row building in New York has nearly a thousand rooms and accommodates a population of 4,000 people.

A man is seldom cool when he shivers in the hour of danger.

WANTED: 50 MEN AND WOMEN

To Take Advantage of Special Offer Made by W. S. Lloyd.

W. S. Lloyd, the enterprising druggist, is advertising today for fifty men and women to take advantage of the special half price offer he is making on Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia and get a fifty cent package at half price, 25 cents.

With Dr. Howard's specific at hand, you can eat what you want and have no fear of ill consequences. It strengthens the stomach, gives perfect digestion, regulates the bowels, creates an appetite, and makes life worth the living.

If you cannot call at W. S. Lloyd's store today, send him 25 cents by mail and he will send you a package, promptly, enages paid.

W. S. Lloyd has been able to secure only a limited supply of the specific, so great is the demand, and you should not delay taking advantage of the liberal offer he is making this week. 40-42

Agriculture.

Agriculture, the basic industry of the country and of the world, is entitled to the foremost position in legislative affairs. History proves that in all countries where agriculture has prospered, all other industries have prospered, and where agriculture has declined, all other industries have declined; therefore, the promotion of agriculture means the promotion of manufacturing, transportation and commercial interests and the interests of the people engaged therein. Agriculture does not depend upon other industries for prosperity, but other industries depend upon agriculture as the basis of their prosperity. The prosperity that has been enjoyed by the people of the country in recent years has been primarily due to the magnificent crops the farmers of the country have produced. Any effort that results in an increased crop production, increases the prosperity of all the people. The forty million people living upon the farms of the country are entitled to as great recognition in tariff and other legislation as an equal number engaged in non-productive industries. It is one of the objects of this organization to secure such recognition of the rights of the people in a non-partisan way as will result in the greatest good to the greatest number.—From National Master's Address.

Hot Against O'Rear.

Listen to this Republican editor, The Maysville Ledger says:

No man has ever used stronger language to tear down the fabric of law and order in Kentucky than this eminent Jurist. The Public Ledger hasn't the honor of O'Rear's acquaintance, and never even saw him, yet we've read with indignation and just horror of his violent and incendiary words during the blighting night rider tobacco war days. Think of such a man in the Governor's Chair! Better a thousand times Governor Cox, E. T. Franks or McCreary than such as he. If O'Rear is named by the Republicans, McCreary will sweep the State by 25,000 votes.

Vinol

Will Build You Up and Make You Strong

Old people, tired, weak, run down people, delicate children, frail mothers, and those recovering from severe illness, this is a fact.

Thousands of genuine testimonials from reliable people prove this claim, and to further support the fact and prove our faith in what we say, we unhesitatingly declare that any one who will try a bottle of VINOL will have their money returned without question if they are not satisfied that it did them good.

First Meeting.

Some people have an idea that a first meeting of Congress is pretty much like a Wild West show, but they never made a bigger mistake. The Wild West business doesn't come until Congress begins to feel its oats. I have been present at several meetings, and there wasn't enough circus business to interest a child. Our home members looked sane and reasonable, and went to their seats just like school children—some of them stooping-like, as if they felt the weight of the country on their shoulders. No, it's a dignified body, and if it so happens you were raised with a Congressman you mustn't call him "Bill" or "Jim," in high company. That's only for when you see him privately, and want to borrow a dollar from him to keep you in fodder until your horse gets to the official rack.

Accidents will happen, but the best-regulated families keep Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil for such emergencies. It subdues the pain and heals the burn. 1-m.

Closing the Mails on Sunday.

When common sense and not selfishness dictate a policy one can make no mistake in pursuing that policy. Every man has a moral, and should have a legal right to rest on Sunday. The devil has used the fact that "the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath" to put many a burden upon man. And why? Simply to gratify some selfish desire of some favorite condjutor, and victim as well, of Mr. Devil, whom his Satanic majesty is preparing to give a hot time after said victim has shuffled off this mortal coil and gone to join in sulphurous flames the restless shade of dear Hamlet's paternal ancestor. The efforts of our Unele Samuel's postal employees to secure Sunday closing in the large postoffices of the country seem likely to meet with success.

No business which tends to secularize the Sabbath and which seriously interferes with man's inalienable right to rest and to worship should receive any sort of sanction by a civilized and Christian people. The average business man finds but too little time for mental rest and culture and thoughts of God and the hereafter during the six days which he devotes to strenuous chasing of the dollar, and should not be deprived his one day for much-needed mental and physical rest and soul expansion. Society owes it to itself to protect itself against the selfish secularizing of the Sabbath by human hogs and the thoughtlessly curious who demand their Sunday mail.

Man's experience, as well as the moral law, declares and emphasizes the un wisdom of laboring seven days in the week. The violation of either moral or physical law, soon or late, brings upon the violator condign punishment. To violate these laws willfully is both foolish and sinful.

In the matter of closing the mails on Sunday the religious press, of course, favors the movement, and it is thought that there will be national legislation favoring it. Detroit, for example, is a city, we are told, which fluds its 100,000 population willing to suspend curiosity one day in the week is to what the mails are to bring them. The Continent (Chicago) seems to imply that curiosity and not necessity is at the basis of the hardships of the postal clerks. It asks this to say:

"One need make no long or extensive investigation to discover that a large proportion of those who apply at carrier offices for mail on Sunday receive none, while probably not one in a thousand is in genuine need of receiving his letters twenty-four hours in advance of the week-day delivery. Christian people everywhere have an unescapable responsibility in this situation. They should not only refrain from joining the number whose heedlessness works injustice, but they should promptly indicate to their postmaster that they have no desire to avail themselves of the privilege. Postmasters are quite so desirous as any one to avoid Sunday work, if they can be supported by public sentiment."

Big Fees for Attorneys.

As a result of a decision handed down by the United States Supreme Court Henry D. Laughlin, of Chicago, and Robert H. Kern, of St. Louis, will be awarded $1,000,000, says the Chicago Examiner.

The case involved claims to oil lands in Oklahoma valued at $10,000,000 by 2,000 negroes who were formerly slaves of the Cherokee Indians. Litigation has been under way since 1892.

Mr. Kern admitted that he expected a fee of $1,000,000 to be paid. Previously in the case the lawyers obtained a payment of $1,000,000 to some of their clients and for this received $100,000.

Many years ago, we are informed Mr. Laughlin lived in Mt. Sterling, where Mr. B. W. Trimble now lives and Mr. Kern is an uncle of Mr. R. G. Kern, of this city.

Watch this paper next week and see the many bargains S. M. Newmeyer will offer from the bankrupt sale of M. L. Gordon.

Crop Improvement.

We are informed that the seed corn is extremely poor this season.

Every grain which fails to grow cuts your crop down at least 25 per cent in each hill.

Every grain dealer, banker and business man should get busy and use every means possible to induce the farmers to test every ear of their seed corn.

There are many good commercial seed testers and the method of testing seed at home is very simple.

If you don't know how to do it, ask your state experiment station to send you a bulletin, but do it now.

Arrest of Jake Noble a Mistake.

Sheriff Hudson, of Breathitt county, who went to Arkansas with the expectation of returning "Bad Jake" Noble, mountain feudist, started the return trip empty-handed. Instead of Noble, Hudson found another Breathitt county man under arrest.

Barnett is penniless and homesick, and adopted the ruse of declaring himself Noble, presumably with the hope of securing transportation to the Blue Grass State. He was released from custody. Noble is wanted for killing Jailer Wesley Turner at Jackson, Ky., last November.
